

IRELAND AND SCOTLAND IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

Frank Ferguson and James McConnel, editors

Contents

James McConnell & Frank Ferguson Introduction	7
Kevin James 'In no degree inferior': Scotland and 'tourist development' in late-Victorian Ireland	11
Clare M. Norcio Societies and seminaries: technological exchange in Ulster agriculture	23
S. Karly Kehoe Irish migrants and the recruitment of Catholic Sisters in Glasgow, 1847-1878	35
Andrew R. Holmes Irish Presbyterian commemorations of their Scottish past, c.1830-1914	48
Frank Ferguson 'The third character': the articulation of Scottish identities in two Irish writers	62
Patrick Maume From Scotland's storied land: William McComb and Scots-Irish Presbyterian identity	76
Peter Gray Thomas Chalmers and Irish Poverty	93
Matthew Potter The urban local state in Scotland and Ireland to 1900: parallels and contracts	108
Susan Kelly Tuberculosis cures used in Ireland, 1700-1950	119
Richard B. McCready St Patrick's Day in Dundee, c.1850-1900: a contested Irish institution in a Scottish context	134
Amy O'Reilly 'All Irishmen of good character': the Hibernian Society of Glasgow, 1792-1824	147
Máirtín Ó Catháin Michael Collins and Scotland	160